| Project Title: | "Get a better job!": Work and stigma in post-COVID UK | | | | |
| Project Description: | COVID-19 saw people across the UK 'clap for carers' on their doorsteps, and previously devalued workers e.g., cleaners, supermarket, delivery workers were hailed 'key workers' as the pandemic revealed the centrality of such labour in the neoliberal economy. However, these short-lived gestures did not materialise into pay increases for workers in these sectors, nor did they change the country's economic priorities. Amid the current 'Cost of Living Crisis', experts have predicted that more people will enter stigmatised forms of low-paid work in the near-future in their efforts to make ends meet. Working with local community partners and applying participatory methods, the potential candidate will address this contention by exploring contemporary forms of work-related stigma to understand how low-income jobs become devalued and the impact on workers in South-East London. The candidate will work with our partner organisations to hone the research design, collect the data, and produce outputs – both academic and non-academic – that will affect how workers, unions, employers, and policymakers think about different forms of work. They will also work collaboratively on projects and as part of a team, to communicate complex ideas in everyday terms and produce outputs that have applied as well as academic impact. | | | | |
